Council Spending Uncovered No.4: TOWN HALL RICH LIST 2008

The first paper in the Council Spending Uncovered series – which investigates wasteful and frivolous town hall spending – revealed a £450 million town hall publicity machine.¹ The second paper showed that £1 in every £11 of council tax is being spent on middle managers earning at least £50,000 a year – a nine fold increase in the last decade.² The third paper showed that £4.6 billion was spent on local government pensions last year – equal to £1 in every £5 of council tax revenue.

In this fourth Council Spending Uncovered paper, we present a detailed list of the 818 most highly paid people in local authorities – people receiving remuneration packages of at least £100,000 in the 450-plus councils across the UK. Last year, the TaxPayers' Alliance produced the first ever list of the richest people in local government. This is the second, expanded, edition of our annual Town Hall Rich List.

Unlike companies in the private sector and other public sector bodies, local authorities do not make executive remuneration details publicly available in their annual accounts. The TPA has therefore had to compile the list through Freedom of Information requests to every local authority. A recalcitrant minority still refuse to provide this information, on highly questionable grounds.

The key findings of the research are:

- There are 6 people in town halls earning more than £200,000 a year.
- There are 14 people in local authorities earning more than the Prime Minister, Gordon Brown, who earns £188,849 including his MP's salary.³
- There are 88 people in town halls earning above £150,000 a year.
- There are 132 people in local authorities earning more than cabinet ministers, who earn £137,579, including their MPs' salaries.⁴

⁴ Ibid.

- The people who are on our list in both 2005-06 and 2006-07 had an average pay rise of 4.6 per cent. This is over twice the current 2 per cent government target for growth in pay for ordinary public sector workers.
- The average total remuneration of the 818 people on the list is £120,938 per annum. This works out at over £2,300 a week.
- The 10 most highly paid people in local authorities earn on average around 10 times the amount earned by someone starting out as a police officer, nurse or soldier.
- The number of people earning above £100,000 in local authorities is increasing rapidly. There were 818 people on these remuneration packages in 2006-07, compared with 645 people in 2005-06, an increase of 27 per cent.

Matthew Elliott, Chief Executive of the TaxPayers' Alliance, said:

"Taxpayers have a right to know how much senior town hall officials are being paid because only then can we judge whether they deserve their remuneration. Too often, council executives are rewarded handsomely even when they fail. Families and pensioners are struggling with the demands of yet another council tax rise, and councils owe it to them to cut back on executive pay hikes."

Ben Farrugia, Policy Analyst at the TaxPayers' Alliance, said:

"Some local government executives still feel that what they're paid is not the taxpayer's business. But with council tax bills now tipping many families over the edge, it is more important than ever that councils are open and transparent about their costs. Council employees must be accountable to the local residents who pay them."

Further details

The Appendix to this note contains further details of the Town Hall Rich List 2008. Two tables detail:

- The 10 most highly paid people in local authorities.
- The five most ludicrous local authority excuses for withholding information.

The full Town Hall Rich List 2008, with names, positions, total remuneration and breakdowns, can be found at the end of this document.

The purpose of the Town Hall Rich List

The Town Hall Rich List was compiled for two reasons:

- Transparency. In order for local authorities to be held to account democratically voters must have as full information on their council's policies and practices as possible. Local authority disclosure requirements are currently very inadequate:
 - While businesses, quangos and Whitehall departments have to disclose the salary, bonus, benefits and pension details of individual senior officials, councils only have to provide the number of staff earning above £50,000 in bands of £10,000. This means that councils cannot be fully held to account by local voters for their remuneration policies.
 - Research into this area is particularly necessary as many local authorities make it very difficult for the public to obtain this information through Freedom of Information requests. Examples of councils resisting, on suspect grounds, clear precedent from rulings by the Information Commissioner that such information should be released are contained in Table A1.3, in Appendix 1.
- Rewards for failure. We have no problem with council staff being paid well for good performance. Unfortunately, it seems that in far too many cases senior council officials are being paid over the odds for inadequate performance. To quote Larry Elliott, Economics Editor at the Guardian:

"Clearly, there have been beneficiaries of the surge in public spending over the past eight years. It is, however, not immediately apparent that the winners have been the public or those at the sharp end – the nurses, the refuse collectors, the librarians, the prison officers or the police.

*Labour used to be accused of allowing producer interests to 'capture' the public sector. It is still open to that charge. All that is different is that the producers have big salaries, drive expensive cars and – so far at least – appear to have achieved the square root of naff all."*⁵

By publishing remuneration details, we hope to enable people to make their own minds up as to whether they are getting good value for money from their local council executives.

⁵ Elliott, L. "What to tell us on budget day: where our money is going and how it can be stopped", The Guardian, March 10 2008 <http://www.guardian.co.uk/politics/2008/mar/10/budget.economics>

About the Council Spending Uncovered series

- Ten years ago the average Band D council tax bill in England was £646.
- Last year the average Band D bill was £1,268.

Despite council tax doubling in the last decade, local authorities almost universally say that they are short of money and need to increase council tax still further or reduce frontline services. Many local authorities are raising council tax and cutting services, such as rubbish collection or care for the elderly, at the same time.

This is not good enough. Taxpayers have a right to expect that their money is spent carefully. Too often we hear stories of wasteful and frivolous town hall spending – money that could be used to improve frontline services or reduce council tax.

Council Spending Uncovered reviews spending by local authorities in all corners of the UK and identifies a number of budgets that could and should be reduced. Whilst we do not suggest that every penny of spending in these areas is wasteful, we do believe that there are significant savings to be made. Council Spending Uncovered enables taxpayers to judge for themselves whether their money is well spent.

By trimming the fat from their budgets, councils can reduce the burden on hard-pressed families and pensioners without cutting important services. A number of local authorities, most notably Hammersmith and Fulham, are showing that it is possible to get a grip on council finances, maintain services and reduce council tax. We hope that others can follow their lead.

Sources and method of calculation

1. The Town Hall Rich List was compiled from responses to Freedom of Information Act (2000) requests submitted in December 2007 to the 450-plus local authorities in the United Kingdom.
2. All the remuneration data is sourced from these responses to our Freedom of Information requests and covers the two most recent full financial years (2005-06 and 2006-07).
3. Total remuneration includes, but is not limited to, salary, bonuses, benefits-in-kind, returning officer payments, car allowances, private medical insurance and redundancy payments. We are not just including basic salary.
4. In a number of cases an individual was not employed by the local authority in both 2005-06 and 2006-07. In these cases the cells for years that they were not employed at the council are blank and there is no calculation made for the percentage increase in remuneration. Where details of arrival/departure dates etc. were provided in the FoI responses, they have been included.

5. In certain cases the individual was not with the local authority for the entire year and in some of these cases the FoI response provided an annualised remuneration figure, which we have used. In other words, we have not needed to estimate an annual figure. As before, where details of arrival/departure dates etc. were provided in the FoI responses, they have been included.
6. In some other cases the individual held more than one post over the period, or the job title changed. In these instances the most up-to-date job title in 2006-07 is displayed.
7. A number of councils have no staff earning more than £100,000, and these are represented by "No staff over £100,000".
8. The responses from the local councils varied greatly in quality and detail. When councils failed to fully answer our freedom of information request the shortcomings in the data provided are noted in the table.
9. Where possible, for those councils that indicated positions but not names, names were obtained from the 2006 and 2007 editions of the Municipal Year Book.
10. In other cases, local councils only provided us with a salary/remuneration band (for example, £130,000 – £139,999) rather than an exact remuneration figure. In these cases we have taken the mid-point of the band (i.e. £130,000 – £139,999 is recorded as £135,000). Where bonuses etc have been detailed as well, they have been added to the mid-point of the salary band. For example, a council executive with a salary band of £130,000 to £139,999, bonus of £5,000 and benefits-in-kind of £5,000 would be displayed as having a total remuneration of £145,000.
11. We have been unable to obtain a small number of names and positions, and so these have been represented by a question mark. We deplore the fact that a recalcitrant minority of councils still hold out against greater transparency.
12. We are clearly not responsible for the accuracy of information contained within responses to FoIs or official directories. However, if mistakes have been made we are happy to take any corrections from anyone named in the Town Hall Rich List 2008.

Table A1.2: The five most ludicrous local authority excuses for withholding information

Council	Date of refusal	Nature of refusal	Excuse	TPA verdict
Kent	06/02/2008	Refused to provide names, positions or any remuneration details	"The Chief Executive ... having personally suffered from the repercussions of the release of this information to you last year ... concluded that it was appropriate to use this exemption to withhold personal information about senior staff on this occasion."	Were Peter Gilroy (Kent Chief Executive) employed in a similar position almost anywhere else, his remuneration would be made public. Why is accountability uniquely unacceptable for councils?
Flintshire	01/02/2008	Refused to provide details of a particular individual who has left employment with the council	"...were such information to be available to the public on demand, this would be likely to adversely affect the individual's personal privacy and Article 8 of the European Convention on Human Rights would be engaged. Therefore not only would release of the information be unfair but it would also be unlawful, under Section 6 of the Human Rights Act 1998."	There are no special provisions in the ECHR for local council staff. Since the Companies Act 1985, companies have been compelled to make public their directors' remuneration. This has survived the ECHR and the Human Rights Act 1998 unscathed.
Hampshire	16/01/2008	Total refusal	"The County Council estimates that the cost of complying with your request would exceed the sum of £450" ... "Your request is vexatious" ... "The County Council has previously complied with a request from you for information, to which your request is identical or substantially similar, and a reasonable interval has not elapsed between compliance with the previous request and the making of your request."	The idea that it would cost £450 to obtain the remuneration details of a few executives is laughable, as is the charge that straightforward public accountability is in some way "vexatious". As we are asking for more up-to-date information, our request is clearly not "identical or substantially similar" to the request made last year to compile the Town Hall Rich List 2007
Harrow	19/12/2007	Refused to provide names, total remuneration and any remuneration details	"Disclosure is incompatible with the purposes for which we hold the information."	The very purpose of freedom of information legislation is to ensure the release of information public bodies would otherwise keep secret.
Edinburgh City	18/12/2007	Refused to provide names, positions or any remuneration details	"... there is no aggregate corporate statistical information in existence that would meet your requirement" ... "Please note that there is no requirement under the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 to produce new information to meet the requirements of a request" ... "The cost of finding, extracting, calculating and checking the information would significantly exceed the prescribed amount and I am therefore unable to supply the additional information..."	Page 26 of Edinburgh City Council's 2006-07 audited accounts lists the number of officers with total remuneration above £50,000, in bands of £10,000. In order to produce this table in its accounts, the council would have needed details on senior staff remuneration. They clearly already possess the information we requested.
